

Cities Receive More Than $340,000 in Returned Revenue

This year's disbursement of delinquent and escaped local business taxes collected from insurance companies has added a significant amount of revenue to many Florida cities. The Delinquent Local Business Tax Collection Program (formerly the Delinquent Occupational License Tax Collection Program), created by the League in 1951, provides an additional source of revenue to participating members.

Through its consulting agency, the League researches and initiates collection procedures for unpaid local business taxes from insurance companies. Program participants receive 50 percent of the collection. They can add these companies to their current list in order to receive 100 percent of future collections. In many instances, the amount returned to the city exceeds the amount that city paid for dues to the Florida League of Cities.

Approximately 270 cities participate in the program. Below is the allocation of funds distributed this year. If your city is not listed, please contact Ken Small, the League's financial technical services manager, at (850) 222-9684 or ksmall@flcities.com for more information about the benefits of this program.
